

Disc golf is more than a niche hobby. It's recreation that doubles as exercise, outdoor time that costs next to nothing, and a global activity that builds communities everywhere.

It's bigger than you think: Half a billion people live within 10 kilometers of a disc golf course.

Think golf, but with plastic discs and elevated baskets instead of clubs and holes, and you have disc golf. Most courses are free to play, require minimal equipment, and add immediate value to parks and open spaces.

Courses = Smart Infrastructure

17,287 courses in 99 countries

More courses in the U.S. than Dunkin' Donuts shops

89% of disc golf courses are free to play

3 new courses built per day in 2025

Serves twice as many people per hour as pickleball

Participation = Healthy Recreation

86% annual participation growth since 2020

21.2 million rounds played in 2025

33 million hours spent on the course

80.5 billion steps walked